SITUATION SUMMARY

HWY 3 Roadway Damage, Trinity County

- On 3/15/2016 Trinity County Proclaimed a local emergency and activated their EOC to Level 1 due to a washout of 1000' of Highway 3.
- A detour is available between Weaverville and Trinity Center using East Side/Trinity Mountain Road; but trucks and RVs are not allowed due to tight curves. Large vehicles will need to access Trinity Center via Highway 3 from the North.
- Highway 3 over Scotts Pass is open, residents can leave the Coffee Creek and Trinity Center areas via Highway 3 to Yreka for supplies. Currently, the only route to take Coffee Creek and Trinity Center residents in 2 wheel drives to Weaverville is a 140 mile detour north on Highway 3 to Yreka, south on I-5 into Redding, and west on Highway 299.
- Highway 3 is expected to remain closed at the slide until Memorial Day weekend.
- Scotts Mountain Pass and East Side Trinity Mountain Road will be plowed starting tomorrow and throughout the storm.
- There are no requests for assistance at this time as all needs are being met. Caltrans, Trinity, Shasta Counties and contractors are working to alleviate transportation issues.
- Inland Region will continue monitoring for additional impacts from this storm.

Health and Medical

- Basic Life Support EMS is available from the local Fire Department.
- A four wheel drive ambulance, which could meet an ALS ambulance if need be, is at the Slate Creek detour.
- Air Ambulances are available in good weather.

National Weather Service in Eureka is currently providing spot weather forecasts

Isolated light showers will move through the area today but will diminish during the afternoon/evening. Very little rain is expected to accumulate at the washout site itself today, but additional light snow accumulations will be possible at Scott Mountain Summit. A warming and drying trend is expected through the end of the week. While significant rain is not expected slight chances for light rain will exist Thursday and Saturday. Chances for showers will increase late in the weekend as a storm system moves south through the area and temperatures will likely cool off a bit.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

A broad upper level trough settles over the forecast area and Westerly flow continues to provide for orographic upslope snow over the cascades helped by a series of moderately strong disturbance. Road cams show plenty of snow and we will keep the winter weather advisory going through late morning. Snow levels are around 3000-4000 feet but the greatest impact will be above 4000 feet. By this afternoon and evening the disturbance will have moved east of the cascades and the atmosphere will start to stabilize except for Northwest upslope flow into late evening.

Eureka Weather:

Scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms will continue through the first half of the day but will diminish this afternoon and evening. An overall warming and drying trend is expected through the end of the week with chances for light rain North of cape Mendocino Thursday and Saturday.

Reno Weather:

Much cooler temperatures and brisk winds are expected through tonight as low pressure exits the region. Rain and higher elevation snow showers will become more isolated through the day today. Drier conditions will prevail tonight and through the rest of the week with a warming trend for the end of this week.

San Francisco Weather:

Isolated showers will continue through early this afternoon with temperatures at or below seasonal averages otherwise, dry weather returns region-wide for the remainder of the week along with warmer daytime temperatures.

Sacramento Weather:

A few scattered showers today but only minimal additional mountain travel impacts expected. Otherwise dry through the remainder of the week with warmer temperatures. The next chance of precipitation will be early next week.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

A few showers will be possible this morning as a weak storm system exits the region. Otherwise strong winds will be present across much of Kern County and the west side of the San Joaquin Valley through late tonight. High pressure will begin to build over Central California on Wednesday into the end of the week resulting in dry weather and a warming trend.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Gusty winds will develop across the area today especially in the mountains and Antelope Valley. It will be cooler than normal today. Fair skies and above normal temperatures will return Wednesday and persist into the weekend.

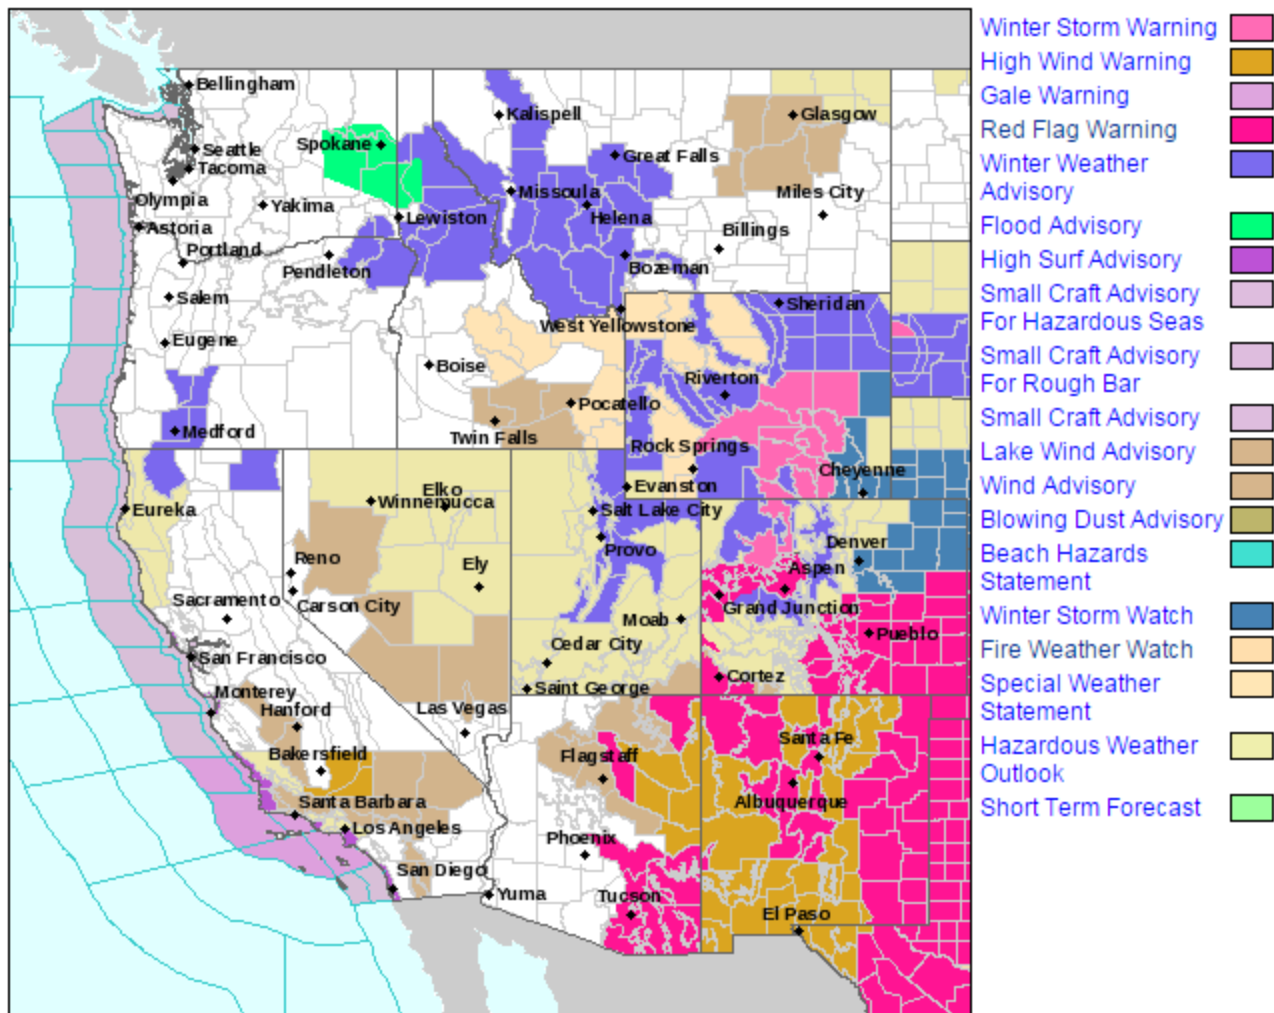

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

For today...a trough of low pressure moving inland through the great basin will bring stronger onshore flow with strong gusty West winds in the mountains and deserts into early evening cooling with inland high temperatures around 5 degrees below average and a slight chance of sprinkles or light showers early this morning on the coastal slopes of the mountains and in the inland valleys. Dry with warming and gusty Northeast winds for Wednesday. Continued dry with high temperatures around 10 degrees above average for Thursday and Friday. The marine layer and onshore flow will return next weekend with a cooling trend and with a return of night and morning coastal low clouds and fog. For early next week a low pressure system from the north could bring cooler and unsettled conditions.

Southeast California Weather:

A pacific low pressure system will move inland across the great basin today bringing cooler temperatures and windy conditions this afternoon and evening. After the low pressure system moves east on Wednesday a gradual warming trend will take place into the weekend.
